Excerpt of Director's mail to teachers:

We will be called upon to use online teaching again and again from now on. Our schools will weave it into our teaching strategy for sure. It is important that you are well trained in this new skill and I would recommend "Learning to Teach Online. Coursera" a four-week free online training program which will make you more competent, confident and professional. You may use the link

<https://www.coursera.org/learn/teach-online>

You must have experienced during your online teaching that unlike classroom teaching, you are on public display, you are under scrutiny by members of the family, some of whom may be teachers, well-educated and highly experienced in different walks of life. It was also noticed that many of you are shy of showing your face and are hiding behind graphics, charts, ppts, videos and audio. This may not be acceptable during the next episodes of online teaching. We may have to come out in the open and show our face. A professionally trained teacher will not shy away from that. Train and equip yourself for that.

Wishing you a safe, healthy and happy stay at home.

Sincerely Yours'
